

Creepy Little Bedtime Stories That Will Leave You Scared to Sleep

Are you looking for a good scare? Do you love to curl up with a creepy story before bed? If so, then you're in luck! This collection of creepy little bedtime stories is sure to leave you scared to sleep.

Roommates: A Creepy Little Bedtime Story (Creepy Little Bedtime Stories Book 3)

★★★★☆ 4.7 out of 5

Language	: English
File size	: 1342 KB
Text-to-Speech	: Enabled
Enhanced typesetting	: Enabled
Word Wise	: Enabled
Print length	: 16 pages
Lending	: Enabled
Screen Reader	: Supported

These stories are perfect for those who love a good scare. From ghosts and goblins to witches and monsters, there's something for everyone in this collection of spine-tingling tales.

So, if you're looking for a good scare, then read on. But be warned, these stories are not for the faint of heart.

The Ghost in the Attic

Once upon a time, there was a young girl named Sarah who lived in a big old house with her family. Sarah loved to explore the house, and she especially loved to play in the attic. One day, Sarah was playing in the attic when she heard a noise. She looked around, but she couldn't see anyone. She heard the noise again, and this time it sounded like someone was crying. Sarah followed the sound to a dark corner of the attic. She saw a little girl sitting on the floor, crying. The little girl was wearing a white dress, and her hair was long and black. Sarah asked the little girl what was wrong, but the little girl didn't answer. She just kept crying. Sarah tried to comfort the little girl, but the little girl wouldn't stop crying. Sarah started to get scared, and she ran out of the attic.

Sarah told her parents what she had seen, but they didn't believe her. They said that she had just imagined the little girl. But Sarah knew what she had seen. She knew that there was a ghost in the attic.

The next day, Sarah went back to the attic. She wanted to find the little girl and help her. Sarah searched the attic, but she couldn't find the little girl. She was about to give up when she heard a noise. She looked up and saw the little girl sitting on a beam. The little girl was still crying, and she looked even sadder than she had the day before. Sarah asked the little girl what was wrong, but the little girl still didn't answer. She just kept crying.

Sarah sat down next to the little girl and put her arm around her. The little girl stopped crying and looked up at Sarah. She said, "My name is Mary. I died here in this house many years ago. I'm trapped here now, and I can't leave." Sarah was shocked. She didn't know what to say. She just sat there and listened to Mary's story.

Mary told Sarah that she had been killed by her stepmother. Her stepmother was a wicked woman who hated Mary. She locked Mary in the attic and starved her to death. Mary said that she had been trapped in the attic ever since. She couldn't leave, and she couldn't rest.

Sarah felt sorry for Mary. She wanted to help her, but she didn't know how. She asked Mary if there was anything she could do to help her. Mary said, "Yes. You can help me find peace. You can tell my story to the world. You can let everyone know what happened to me." Sarah promised Mary that she would tell her story. She would tell the world what had happened to Mary. She would help Mary find peace.

Sarah went downstairs and told her parents what she had learned. Her parents were shocked and saddened by Mary's story. They promised Sarah that they would help her tell Mary's story to the world.

Sarah and her parents went to the local newspaper and told Mary's story to the reporter. The reporter wrote a story about Mary, and the story was published in the newspaper. The story was picked up by other newspapers and magazines, and soon Mary's story was known all over the world.

After Mary's story was published, people started to visit the house where she had died. They wanted to see where the ghost of Mary lived. They wanted to hear her story. Sarah and her parents were happy to tell Mary's story to the visitors. They told them about Mary's life, her death, and her ghost. The visitors were saddened by Mary's story, but they were also inspired by her courage. They knew that Mary was a victim of violence, but they also knew that she was a strong and brave woman. They knew that Mary's story was a story of hope and redemption.

The Goblin in the Garden

Once upon a time, there was a young boy named Timmy who lived in a small village with his family. Timmy loved to play in the garden, and he especially loved to play in the vegetable patch. One day, Timmy was playing in the garden when he saw a goblin. The goblin was sitting on a pumpkin, and he was eating a tomato. Timmy was scared of the goblin, but he was also curious. He wanted to know more about the goblin.

Timmy walked up to the goblin and said, "Hello." The goblin looked up at Timmy and smiled. He said, "Hello, little boy. My name is Gobbo." Timmy told Gobbo his name, and they started talking. Gobbo told Timmy that he lived in the garden, and that he loved to eat vegetables. Timmy told Gobbo that he loved to play in the garden, and that he especially loved to play in the vegetable patch.

Timmy and Gobbo became friends. They played together in the garden every day. They would eat vegetables, and they would talk about their lives. Timmy learned a lot about goblins from Gobbo. He learned that goblins are not as scary as they seem. He learned that goblins are just like people. They have their own families and friends. They have their own hopes and dreams.

One day, Timmy's parents told him that they were moving to a new house. Timmy was sad to leave his friends, but he knew that he would see them again someday. Timmy said goodbye to his friends, and he and his parents moved to their new house.

Timmy missed his friends very much. He missed playing with them in the garden. He missed talking to them about his life. He missed eating vegetables with them.

One day, Timmy was playing in the garden of his new house when he saw a goblin. The goblin was sitting on a pumpkin, and he was eating a tomato. Timmy was so happy to see his friend. He ran up to the goblin and hugged him.

The goblin was happy to see Timmy too. He hugged Timmy back, and he said, "I missed you, Timmy." Timmy and the goblin sat down on the pumpkin and talked for hours. They talked about their lives, their hopes, and their dreams.

Timmy knew that he had found a true friend in the goblin. He knew that the goblin would always be there for him, no matter what.

The Witch in the Woods

Roommates: A Creepy Little Bedtime Story (Creepy Little Bedtime Stories Book 3)

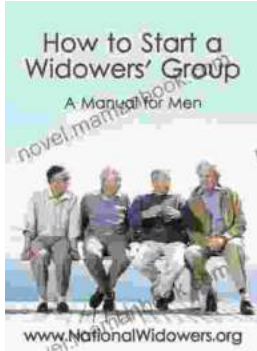

★★★★☆ 4.7 out of 5

Language	: English
File size	: 1342 KB
Text-to-Speech	: Enabled
Enhanced typesetting	: Enabled
Word Wise	: Enabled
Print length	: 16 pages
Lending	: Enabled
Screen Reader	: Supported

FREE

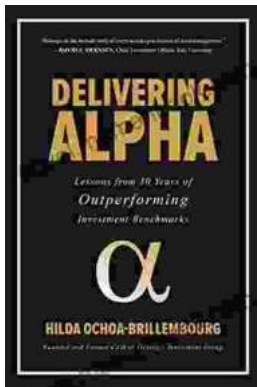

DOWNLOAD E-BOOK

The Ultimate Manual for Men: A Guide to Living a Fulfilling and Successful Life

Being a man in today's world can be tough. There are a lot of expectations placed on us, and it can be hard to know how to live up to them. But don't worry, we're...

Lessons From 30 Years of Outperforming Investment Benchmarks

The stock market is a complex and ever-changing landscape. It can be difficult to know where to invest your money and how to achieve the best possible returns. However, by...