The Birth of Six Yards

Ben Stevens, born and raised in England, embarked on a life-changing journey that would lead him to India and the creation of Six Yards. His fascination with India began early on during his travels. Intrigued by the vibrant culture, rich craftsmanship, and captivating textiles, he decided to make India his second home in 2005.

In India, Stevens was captivated by the traditional six-yard saree, a versatile garment worn by women throughout the country. He saw the beauty and potential in this timeless piece and recognized its cultural significance. Inspired by the drape and flow of the saree, he began experimenting with ways to incorporate its essence into contemporary fashion.

From this experimentation, Six Yards was born in 2008. Stevens established his design studio in Mumbai, India, and set out to create a sustainable fashion brand that celebrated traditional craftsmanship while embracing modern aesthetics.

Sustainable Design Philosophy

Sustainability is at the core of Six Yards' design philosophy. Stevens believes that fashion should not come at the expense of the environment or the people involved in its production. He sources fabrics and materials responsibly, ensuring that they meet ethical and environmental standards.

Six Yards works closely with skilled artisans in India, providing them with fair wages and safe working conditions. The brand supports local communities by sourcing materials and production within India, promoting economic empowerment and preserving traditional skills.

Innovative Saree Designs

Ben Stevens' designs are known for their innovative approach to the traditional saree. He reimagines the saree into contemporary silhouettes, creating versatile pieces that can be worn in multiple ways.

Stevens' collections feature sarees in a range of fabrics, including organic cotton, handwoven silk, and linen. He uses intricate embroidery, hand-painted motifs, and traditional printing techniques to adorn his garments, creating unique and eye-catching pieces.

The designer's signature drape, known as the "Six Yards Drape," transforms the saree into a modern and stylish garment. The drape allows the wearer to create various looks, from elegant gowns to chic dresses.

International Recognition

Ben Stevens and Six Yards have gained international recognition for their innovative designs and sustainable practices. The brand has been featured in prestigious fashion publications, including Vogue, Harper's Bazaar, and The New York Times. Stevens has showcased his collections at international fashion weeks, including London Fashion Week and Paris Fashion Week.

Beyond the fashion world, Six Yards has received numerous awards and accolades for its sustainability initiatives. The brand has been recognized by organizations such as the United Nations Environment Programme and the Ethical Fashion Forum.

The Future of Six Yards

Ben Stevens continues to push the boundaries of sustainable fashion. He is constantly exploring new ways to reduce waste, promote ethical production, and empower artisans. The future of Six Yards looks bright, as the brand continues to grow and inspire fashion enthusiasts worldwide.

Through his innovative designs and unwavering commitment to sustainability, Ben Stevens has established Six Yards as a revolutionary force in the fashion industry. His work has raised awareness about the importance of ethical and environmentally conscious fashion, proving that style and sustainability can coexist.

Ben Stevens, the founder of Six Yards, is a visionary designer who has successfully bridged the gap between tradition and modernity. His designs celebrate cultural heritage while embracing sustainable practices, creating a positive impact on the fashion industry and beyond.

As Six Yards continues to grow, it serves as an inspiration to aspiring designers and fashion enthusiasts alike. Ben Stevens' journey is a testament to the power of innovation, sustainability, and the belief that style should not compromise ethics.
